MAKING STOPOVER . . . Boy Scouts of Harbor City and Lomita take a break during their six-day Silver Moccasin hike through the Sierra Madres recently. Here they prepare to make a camp after hiking throughout the day.

Lomita, Harbor City Scout Unit Completes Trail Hike

Boy Scout Troop 569 has completed its six day Silver Moccasin hike in the Sierra Madra area. The boys ranging in age from 11 to 14 completed approximately 65 miles during the hike. The hike had to be completed in order for the boys to win their merits. The Scouts and Scoutmaster

W. H. Bean were driven to Gentry Flats where the hike began. Gentry Flats has an elevation of 2200 feet. The day the Scouts arrived at the flats, they hiked to Spruce Grove, elevation 3200 feet. The second day brought them through Newcomb Pass, Westfork and finally to Big Ti-janga where they dry camped for the night. Dry camping is what one does if caught between regular camping sites, you can sleep but no fires or cooking are allowed. The next morning the dry-campers hiked three miles for breakfast at Upper Chiklo, elevation 5200 feet. At Charleston Flats the Scouts were met by their parents who had brought a picnic lunch for all.

On the fourth day they made it as far as Buckhorn elevation 6500 feet, and camped down for the night. The fifth day they climbed to Little Jimmie, elevation 7500, and onto Mt. Badin Powell, at an elevation of 9399 feet. From there the hikers climbed down to Lamel Spring, bringing them to the 7700 foot level.

See Jackson Lake
The sixth morning they descended to 6150 feet and Jackson Lake, where Mabel Horn-er waited in the station wagon to bring the adventurers home.

The Scouts were handicapped by trying to hold the weight of their packs between 15 and 18 pounds, not including drinking water which weighs four pounds to a quart. On the hike the boys used hydrated food which Mr. Bean said was very good when there was enough water. Not knowing for sure about the water supply ahead of them at the next camp, the Scouts could take no chance and carried extra canteens of water. One of the highlights of the hike happened when the Scouts obtained permission as Boy Scouts of America from the forest rangers to hike along the trail on Angel Crest Rd. being worked on by road crew of convicts. The boys talked to the convicts and learned that the dog with the crew had been sentenced for life.

The Boy Scouts on the hike were Jerry Croskrey, Robert Kozakiewicz, Gail Fair, Ronnie Graff, Alton Benfer, Richard Grosch and Charles Bean. All the boys are from Lomita or Harbor City.
